[my coordinator] is amazing! There were days that I did not even believe in myself, and yet she still did. I could call her crying and upset and feeling like a failure, and she never gave up on me. She always calmed me down and got me through. Because of her faith in me, I have received countless opportunities and I feel like a much better person and a more confident educator. College of Education really won the jackpot with this lady!

All of these were rated fairly and with confidence. [my coordinator] was helpful, respectful, and kind. I learned from our seminars, emails, and visits. He was not only supportive, he was helpful in that he made sure he was giving feedback that was relevant to what I was teaching and what I needed. He answered all my questions in a timely manner. In fact, I was typically shocked in how fast he responded to my questions and graded my material. He really helped me this semester and made my full internship go much more smoothly.

[my coordinator] did not provide ANY feedback whatsoever on any of the work that I submitted via Chalk & Wire. I was quite disappointed that I only received a score. I wish she included comments as she was grading my assignments.

I loved my coordinator. She was very helpful, and approachable! She answered all of my questions quickly and cared deeply about my success.

The directions on the daily lesson plans and the Learning Project assignments were often initially unclear. Also, it would be greatly beneficial to do the in depth explanation of the Learning Project assignments at the seminar BEFORE when it was due. All of the students that I talked to were quite frustrated that the main explanation occurred on the day it was due and not the seminar before (so that we would have a month to work on it with a clear, thorough understanding). Besides the weakness of instruction clarity, I quite liked [my coordinator] as a person and as a peer. She provided lovely feedback during the observations and was always helpful with constructive criticism. She obviously cares for all her applicant's success and I recommend the furthering of her position with NSU.

I loved having [my coordinator] for my site coordinator. She was awesome to work with and made this semester one of my most memorable. She made me feel comfortable to ask questions and was quick to respond.

The only piece of feedback I would give, is to suggest that she explicitly outlines due dates to us.

For future students, I think this coordinator should not have interns who have a family, especially children. My kids come first and always will. I ran into some personal issues during my internship. I had to seek childcare that affected my internship. My CF and I worked something out so I could continue my internship, still be present daily, and my child had a place to go. When [my coordinator] submitted my final scores she took off for me being a parent. Teaching is the number one job for mothers. I do not think down grading me and making remarks about my children is professional. What shocked me the most is that to my face she was understanding and praised me for working something out so I can succeed, but then makes negative comments on my evaluations. I have NEVER had a professor at NSU who treated me like this. It made my whole internship stressful and at times made me want to quit. Family always comes first. Just because I am a mother does not make me a bad teacher!! College is hard enough. If NSU wants working successful adults, I do not think pushing them away is a good idea.

She was great!

[my coordinator] was such a blessing throughout my internship. She has encouraged and empowered me on many different occasions. She is always so helpful with any questions I have. She is quick in her responses on both email and phone. I am very thankful for her!

[my coordinator] is a GREAT coordinator! She was always available for questions, and gave great feedback.

[my coordinator] is an excellent coordinator and mentor!

[my coordinator] is a wonderful coordinator who has been invested in my success since day one. She challenges us to be better educators and for that I'm thankful.

After speaking with fellow interns that have different coordinators, I found that the work my coordinator required was about double what the other coordinators required. I don't have an issue with being thorough and I passed, however I spent a significantly larger amount of time working on my project than others. Mine ended up being 50 pages while others' were around 20. I thought it was a little unfortunate that the same thing was not required of each intern. Other than that, I found the semester to be successful!

[my coordinator] was an amazing coordinator. I appreciate her attention to detail, and giving good tips on way to improve my lessons. She was wonderful about returning emails very promptly. Graded as quickly as could be expected with all she had to grade! I am thankful she was my coordinator and helped make my final semester a successful one.

She was a great support this year.

[my coordinator] was a wonderful coordinator. She made sure that I was on track throughout the duration of my internship. She went above and beyond writing me a letter of recommendation and offered her support at anytime I needed her. I truly think she was the best coordinator I could have ever asked for.

[my coordinator] was a fantastic coordinator. She is very organized and timely. She gives great feedback and she encouraged us and urged us all to do our very best. I feel very lucky to have had her as my coordinator and she made the learning project very do-able and she did a wonderful job explaining the expectations.

She's really old school (not in a good way). Made us complete these crazy detailed lesson plans for every day of every week of my internship and it was really unrealistic and a total waste of time.

[my coordinator] was very understanding and conducted herself professionally throughout the semester. I thank her for being the way she is.

[my coordinator] had high expectations for his teacher candidates. He was very open with us and wanted us to understand the real world of teaching. His feedback was kind and useful, and he was always open for conversation.

I greatly enjoyed having [my coordinator] as my coordinator this semester!

I have enjoyed having [my coordinator] as my coordinator. He has been very invested in my success and always supportive.

[my coordinator] has been an absolute blessing this semester. [my coordinator] was very professional in giving feedback and offering information about my future as an educator.

[my coordinator] is an outstanding coordinator and teacher. NSU is lucky to have her. She has been a key component for me finishing my degree as an untraditional student. I couldn't be more satisfied with her and the university in general. Loved my experience here.
